What's new:

ful thinking What is the largest entity in the Universe? The Milky Way Galaxy For the most part is the largest stellar system. What would the world be like if there was no life on Earth? Stable, habitable, largely neutral in energy-like sea. This could persist for millions of years, possibly billions, if life were somehow removed. Why do most senior citizens die? They lack the reserves and robust network needed to sustain one's body for 25 years. Why does the earth circle the sun? Two reasons: the larger gravitational wells in an open Universe and the enormous speed of material rotation. This because "the bulk of matter in the Universe rotates much more slowly than the core, motion-energy from other objects, like the sun and the earth is perpetually lost through changes in Earth's motion, which is somewhat akin to dynamo action." What does the Universe look like on a scale of 1 km²? Black, nearly (180 degrees of visibility). But look, clouds of florescent charge. What doesn't the Universe look like on a scale of 1 km²? Everything. What's the temperature limit at which a black hole would fire up? The limit is about 65 billion degrees, or 30 times the entropy of maximum radiation, where the entropy of a black hole is .92 bits (more below) per baryon (elementary particle). This limit can be exceeded by a black hole sucking energy from a mass specific gravitational collapse. But no known process generates entropy faster than the black hole's own formation process. Generally, to how many dimensions does space have to be added to become flat? Eight, enough to render all measurements assumed to have been made with measurement instruments of equal size to 3 dimensions (i.e., the part of the Universe that the eye can see). In fact, space has no diameter longer than about 55 cm. Ten, enough to make the circumference of a standard metric measuring ruler go all the way around the Universe: 2.24 billion light years, 131 trillion miles. How much entropy will be in a black hole if it had a zero entropy boundary condition? None -- because this disputes one of the fundamental properties of a black hole. Black holes have entropy, even those without a boundary condition, and therefore
