Police in Kent are reviewing CCTV footage in the hunt for two men who exposed themselves in a barber shop. Witnesses reported seeing one man expose himself to about 100 people inside the shop before heading into a nearby convenience store where staff believe he then made off on the stolen bike he was riding. The incident happened at about 12.30am on Wednesday at the Lewis & Short shop, opposite the Mayflower Theatre in Sevenoaks. The owner of the shop, Darren, said the man was 'riding with his genitals displayed'. His second prank saw him pull a bicycle from the convenience store and drive it along the road. "It was at the front of the shop, he just cycled off. We didn't realise he could ride it as far as we do. He drove down the street then pulled over and got on the pavement," Darren told the News, adding the bike was 'too heavy for him to carry'. In a statement, the pub said: "Following an incident outside the Mayflower Pub early on on Wednesday, 7 January, we can confirm that we had an unknown customer who attempted to enter the pub but was not able to gain entry. "Our outside security camera captured the incident and we would like to take this opportunity to apologise for any offence caused." The pub is now offering a £10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the suspect. The man is described as white, about 5ft 6ins tall, of medium build with a scar on his left cheek. Kent Police said it was not their jurisdiction, and asked anyone with information to call the nearest
