The new storyline will unfold in the "WWF Fan Appreciation" episode of Monday's "Million Dollar Mask" match, an honor given to the pro wrestlers' best and most loyal fans. Over the past few months, the organization has been embroiled in a number of gay-themed storylines involving wrestlers wrestling each other with loaded dice or with male or female body doubles. But a recent bout between wrestler The Road Dogg and King Kong Bundy in Houston was roundly criticized as it involved wrestling on a bed with Bundy and Dixie Carter, the girlfriend of wrestling impresario Vince McMahon. "It looked like two cars crashing," said gay-rights activist Gene Marsh of Texas. "It looked like something from the '60s or the '70s." "This is a revolution," said gay-rights activist Art De Leon of Dallas. "We're tired of waiting for the government to make this change." The storyline of Vito Corleone enlists a male lover, Johnny Casper, to exact revenge on the organization. "We need to have more love on the airwaves," said wrestling consultant Andy Rooney, who has a degree in theology. "Vito has a deep hatred of the WWF. He thinks that the organization has made money out of the blood of innocents and is ruining the human condition." Rooney also pointed to a long history of wrestling-related deaths of homosexuals. "The two who have died the most in wrestling history are Jack Bruno and George Steele. Bruno got his throat slashed and Steele got hanged to death," he said. "Vito Corleone's story line is in bad taste and I think it's just a coincidence that the Corleone name was used for that wrestler," said wrestler Rocco Steele, who has never worked a wrestling match. Steele said he had previously worked as a doorman at "The World" in Dallas. Steele, who was raised as a Catholic, said he believes that gay-oriented programming is necessary. "If you're going to start celebrating gay lifestyles, then you have to take a stand, and f988f36e3a
