person to connect to other users in the network, through software that plays a role in the distribution and exchange of files and data. Through Peer-to-Peer, a user is able to exchange data without going through a centralized server. The main distinction between a P2P client and a server is that the files and data are stored on the individual users' devices, and each user is the owner of those files. A P2P client acts as a directory, a query tool and a bit-torrent file manager. When you use P2P you can share files, music, movies, applications, ebooks, games, etc. With this aa67ecbc25
