Pleural mesothelioma is a tumor whose pathogenesis is still not completely understood. The somatic alterations of the p16/CDKN2A gene and RB1 gene in pleural mesothelioma are still not well documented in the Cuban context, and no study has been done to describe the association of these genes' mutations with the clinical and histological characteristics of the tumor. We have studied the status of the p16, CDKN2A and RB1 genes in a series of 81 Cuban patients with pleural mesothelioma. DNA was extracted from paraffin-embedded tissue samples, and the nucleotide sequences of the exons 1, 2, 3, 4 and 7 of the p16/CDKN2A gene and exons 1, 2 and 3 of the RB1 gene were analyzed. The identification of p16 or CDKN2A gene mutations was performed by direct sequencing. The RB1 gene was studied by mutation analysis and pyrosequencing. The status of the markers was analyzed in relation to the clinical and histopathological characteristics of the tumors. We found mutations in 29.6% of the pleural mesotheliomas, the majority of them in the p16/CDKN2A gene (27.2%) and the RB1 gene (27.2%). The most frequent mutation was a deletion in exon 2 of the p16/CDKN2A gene (23.5%). The p16/CDKN2A deletions and the RB1 gene mutations were not linked to any characteristic of the patients. However, in the subgroup of patients whose tumors presented with distant metastases the probability of detection of these mutations was higher (OR = 3.0cc13bf012

Red Giant Keying Suite 11.(CNN) Donald Trump has been criticized for escalating tensions between the US and Russia by calling on Russian President Vladimir Putin to "keep his country out of" Syria's civil war Trump has also accused the top US intelligence official of "nothing doing" in response to his allegations that Obama "choked" in Syria. The White House has taken multiple positions over the last week regarding what exactly Trump's "red line" is in Syria, and whether there even is such a thing. The uncertainty has been frustrating for Trump's fellow Republicans, and members of the US intelligence community, who have warned that a red line could lead to an international incident or even war. But neither Trump, nor the top US military officials in the region, have provided any evidence to back up the contention that the US has been given a red line in Syria. And Trump himself publicly contradicted his own intelligence officials by telling Fox News in a May 17 interview that he "would never say that" he was drawing a red line with Russia. "I don't like that that sort of suggestion has been made, because without Assad you have nothing. There is no country. There's no United States. There's no Russia. There's no nothing," Trump said. 'We can't begin to talk about red lines' But in a May 16 interview with Fox News host Bill O'Reilly, Trump said "the red line in the sand is moving" and said the US "shouldn't be fighting Syria," but then "should maybe be fighting Russia, if that happens." Rear Adm. John Kirby, the top US military spokesman, told CNN that Trump's comments were "imprecise and imprecise statements." "What the red line is, and there's a lot of talk about it, what the red line is, is we will not tolerate
