This year we camped out at Antelope Canyon for a couple nights and it was a blast! We had an amazing view of the canyon from one of the four camp sites and the views from the walk-up on the North Rim were great as well. We spent an afternoon touring in the canyon and it was a very relaxing way to spend our first day in AZ. The walk up to the mesa top was very challenging but it was well worth it! Then we headed down the back side of the mesa for an awesome hike. We hiked all the way to the bottom of the canyon and then up through the slot canyons. All in all, it was a fun day of hiking and I can't wait to go back! Why would an immigrant be detained by a law enforcement agency? First of all, when migrants are apprehended by federal agents, they are not detained in a jail. They are processed and when they are deemed inadmissible or here illegally, they are placed into immigration court. Migrants are not detained for the purpose of punishment. Is the Trump administration operating a racist and inhumane policy? As to whether or not this is a racist policy, it would be a stretch to say that this is meant to be racist. However, by enforcing the law, immigrants seeking to cross into the country are not being subjected to cruel and unusual punishment, nor are they being placed in a jail, as was done in past administrations. This is just the law being upheld. Is this policy justifiable and justifiable under law? Under current law, it is illegal for a law enforcement agency to detain a migrant without a judicial warrant. Further, there have been calls for the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to be put on administrative hold as the Trump administration has been making the headlines for its (justifiable) controversial "zero tolerance" immigration policy. The reason for the proposed federal administrative hold on all DHS operations is the chaos that may occur as the Trump administration has been forced to shut down the entirety of the agency. DHS is responsible for enforcing immigration laws and complying with 3e33713323
