We are in the city of Baldea, El Sallia, at the highest point of the Tower of Prophecy. It is night, and the moon rides high in the sky. In the darkness, the stone towers seem to stretch off into infinity, toward a night so immense, it seems to have no beginning, no end...and it is this night that I wait for the arrival of a man. The man's name is Zufei. He arrived here with nothing, not even the clothes on his back. He left this city again, in the same tattered and broken state, and I've come to see him one last time. He's a man of few words, a man of few words, so I have little to offer him. It can hardly be considered a proper conversation. For he is far more than that. He's his destiny, and his future. We wait for our destiny, isn't that right? I just can't help but talk with him. I can't help but look up at the night sky. I don't know if he realizes, but I've come to meet his future and his past. It is all there in the night sky... What do you want? Thank you for your vote! You have already voted for this. What do you think of this game? Your vote is counted! I'm working on a little project in which I'm trying to find the number of subexpressions when parsing a querystring.
