But where are we supposed to locate our area? The surface of the planet is a jumble of mountains, volcanoes, savannas and wilderness. The reason we prefer our location, is because it has a very good infrastructure, power and resources for habitation. Our area, or our town, is on the edge of the savanna. But in order to remind people that we are not in the 5 Share this: I've finally finished off the Viking Raiders for the game I've been playing. Apologies for the lack of updates in the past two weeks, but I did get the opportunity to finish off the last battle in support. I also started the support I'll be doing for Supplement 1, which at this stage will be based on Viking Raiders support. The Vikings raiding in support is using the style and design of the Western Goths in Supplement 1. In the next coming posts, I'll have details of my support for the Western Goths before moving onto Vikings. Viking Raiders Support Going into support for Viking Raiders, I did have some ideas in my mind what should work with Viking Raiders. I used the style and standards models when creating these units. I wanted to emulate the Viking Raiders as closely as I could. Support Models Later in the week of planning for support, I'll do a special articles on the men and models in this unit.

However, I will show you some the men here. Highlanders These men are from one of the Pictish kingdoms of Scotland. They were warriors brought down to these Highlands from their former kingdoms. They were Christian but did not live in monasteries. I did a two part post last year on the Highlanders. That's why you will see some new graphic in these posts. I have used some of the earlier posts as a reference for the new look. Every one has access to a 'driver' unit shown in red. I've drawn part of the shield on the men to show which block will be provided in game. These shield blocks have not been drawn on in game and will be resized and fit to the unit like all the Warlord Skills. As I'm only using the bows in this example, I've not drawn the bow on the shield block yet. I actually still need to light this up as there is a shadow behind the block. All the warlord skills have some kind of combat icon painted on the shield blocks. My fellow members on the Viking Raiders playing group have tried to paint the icons out - but the acrylic paints are too transparent. Weapons I knew in the design of the model I wanted to use longer spears. As these are Vikings and used in warfare, they will do what they were designed to do - they will

Being an RPG-Puzzle game, it took as long as it did to create due to the huge amount of story and gameplay mechanics that needed to be explained. The new and improved manual now explains a lot of the gameplay and characters mechanics including lengthy abbreviated histories of the main characters. Who is the Story of? -Commander David Tallarico In a far corner of the world, the flag of Britannia flies on every ship. Britannia is a kingdom ruled by the crown. The first king of Britannia was King Balder. But one day King Balder died in a shipwreck. His son, Arthur, came to the throne. To hold the country together, he kept magic from the elves in the catacombs. The arrival of the Forgotten Cave, a strange group of people whose origins were lost in the confusion of great battles of magic and technology in the world's first age, has brought a magical plague to the crown that threatens to plunge the country into chaos. Central Government Establish a government and order. Invest in your country. -Your King The character of the game is David Tallarico. He served under the previous king, Arthur. David and his family live in Hollow Tree Village. To make the village strong, David took on the role of mayor. However, the war between the magic and the technology never got better. The war is not won. The main character's story is presented in three parts in the game. In the first chapter, you play as David Tallarico. In the second chapter, you play as his son, Daniel. After the first chapter, you play as Daniel once again in Chapter three. The third and final chapter involves the story of Enzo. -Explanation of Characters David Tallarico -Description: Commander David Tallarico from Hollow Tree Village. David leads the defense for the village. Despite the fact that he believes in magic, David fights for the best. He is always prepared to defend Hollow Tree Village. -Age: 20 Daniel Tallarico -Description: David's son. Daniel is 16. He is a student at the Hollow Tree Academy. He is a cunning, straight-thinking
