VocDB

VocDB is an inventory of words, which is designed to provide an immediate method of translating words between languages. By default, VocDB finds words from two dictionaries in different languages and creates a "Cross Dictionary", which is a bilingual dictionary containing a list of words. If one of the dictionaries in a cross dictionary (or the original dictionaries) is a complete dictionary containing all words, VocDB automatically creates a translation. VocDB 2.2.0 Review Releases by Month VocDB Beta Migration support Completed support for macOS High Sierra VocDB-Beta VocDB-Beta is a Special Team for VocDB Translation We have a Special Team who is for VocDB Translation. They can provide translation from English to Spanish for free. There will be a request of "XML Translation" for some parts. Please provide the required info and complete your project. If it's not our issue, we will provide the suggested translations. After the translation is completed, the team will add "Completed" to the request. When the translation is completed, they will update the request. You can check the status after the translation is completed. Thank you very much. We also need other native Spanish speakers to check the translations. Also, we would like to hear your suggestions for improvement. Please provide them. Please use GitHub Issues for your requests. Thanks to this, we can give you the best tools. We have a List of requests. We would like to add this to the list of requests. If you have any questions, please contact us at translators@vocdb.org. What's New In VocDB?

VocDB is a specialized software for vocabulary translation between two languages and it is based on word databases. VocDB is a multi-lingual dictionary, includes a wide range of dictionaries and databases (more than 300 dictionaries: names, designations, abbreviations, acronyms, professions, enterprises, institutions, organisations, localities, locations,...) on many languages in many countries (over 200). This website is available in 8 languages (English, french, Spanish, Greek, Czech, Hungarian, Polish, Slovak) for free!The use of concealed firearm permits in the U.S. has become such a regulated issue that there are limits on how much laws can change this aspect of our legal system without Congressional approval. This notwithstanding, permit laws are clearly on the chopping block as they seek to balance a person's Second Amendment right to own a weapon against a person's "right" to prevent their own loss of life. Meanwhile, as a person who happens to own a handgun, is licensed to carry a firearm in her home state, and has carried a firearm for nearly 30 years in the U.S., I have spent considerable time thinking about this issue. And, I can tell you, there's not a day that goes by when I don't think about the Second Amendment when I hear about a mass shooting, like the one in Connecticut yesterday, as well as the tragic rash of mass shootings and gun rampages throughout the country over the past year. One of the most alarming aspects of this tragedy in Connecticut was the age at which the shooter was killed: 20 year-old Adam Lanza, who, from the evidence, is described as having been a sick, disturbed child. In fact, Lanza appears to be an example of the broken system that must be fixed. As others have said, Adam Lanza was a child who suffered from the conditions of a broken home. He moved in with his mother, who apparently was unable to control her son and kick him out of the house. So, he moved out, only to be back in her home, with full access to the weapon which he used to kill his mother in their home. She was able to speak to law enforcement and report the crime; however, it appears that law enforcement was unable to control Lanza. As for the father of the home, well, the story is less than clear. According to Wikipedia, there was never
