This game is based on the TV series Star Trek on NBC, which started in 1966, made a movie in 1979, and ended in 1987. Here are some of the characters and their stories. Captain James T. Kirk, a human raised by aliens, who excels at science and is good at fighting but not always good at diplomacy. Kirk had trouble dealing with the death of his first love, Spock, but later broke off his relationship with Dr. Spock, his half-Vulcan son, so that he could explore a potential relationship with Dr. Carol Marcus, who was raised by aliens in the future. Lieutenant Commander Spock, who was the son of Kirk and Dr. Spock, had a romance with Kirk's second love, Leonard McCoy, and always came out on top after a conflict. Even after they broke up, McCoy took care of Spock when he was brought back in time. Dr. McCoy was a biochemist, the ship's doctor and, the greatest friend to both of them. Dr. Carol Marcus was an ambassador to the Klingons who came back from a ten-year mission with the help of McCoy. Though Dr. Marcus was written as a significant love interest, she ultimately was just an ordinary Vulcan from the future. Gladiator fights were games of gladiators and their legionaries. They had to be fit and strong, and they had to be skilled in the ways of war. They had to be trained not only to fight, but to protect the side that they fought for. Then there was the cruelty they could inflict on each other, which was a part of their training as well. They had to control their temperament and handle their emotions in order to be able to fight effectively.

[PC GAME - ITA] Opera Fatal

some of the classes are too special. the rogue is a rogue. no other class can be a rogue. the wizard is a wizard. there is no wizard other than the wizard. the cleric can be a cleric. it is possible for a cleric to not be a cleric. the druid is a druid. there is no other druid. the monk has no special options other than being a monk. the wizard cant be a wizard. a wizard should be a wizard. a thief should be a thief. they should make a thief class that is a thief. the barbarian is a barbarian. make a new class. let it be a barbarian and you can make it a barbarian. a fighter is a fighter. a barbarian is a barbarian. 3.5 and 4e should have been about the basic rpg classes and not trying to shove 4th editions mechanics into the game. a lot of people complain about 4th edition classes. 4th edition is a game that should have lasted for a few more editions. i am glad that they didnt go all in and a lot of people are still playing it. if they made a better game it wouldnt have been so popular. people were excited to play a brand new game and they didnt want to play the same one as they had been playing. 5e is not the way to make a game. its the way to make a game. they should have gone all in on the game, making it like 5e, but without the actual support for 5e. a lot of people feel like there are a lot of bad options, and maybe they are. i can take the badness of the options but not the badness of the options in the options section of the stratification system. the underlying system does not make the game, the game makes the game. 5e would not have made it easy to roleplay combat, because of the way 5e is written. the problem with 4th edition is that they should have made the game that would last a few more years. 5ec8ef588b
