For instance, imagine that you're designing and working on a family website, and you want to share an image of your latest art project with your mom. Click on a Flickr link to open a new window and start to add attribution to the image, then share it on your website from there. In just a couple of clicks, anyone can come along and then use the image on their own pages. We're already seeing this be used across the web, with users being able to share and combine works from different photos using this new feature.
