“FIFA 22 delivers the most enhanced football game ever, with everything you love – from gameplay to story – and we’ve used the most advanced motion capture technology to make it a reality,” said Alex Nicholson, Creative Director, FIFA. “We’ve used our previous FIFA players to create the most authentic and best-feeling game yet, and we’re excited to bring this to the new generation of our fans.” “We’re incredibly excited for fans to see how things have changed with HyperMotion Technology,” continued Horst Duinker, Chief Technology Officer at EA SPORTS. “We started with the full body in FIFA 15, and we’ve used some of the lessons from there to really make this version the most realistic portrayal of football. Our players aren’t superhuman and don’t hit the ball with inhuman force. They’ve been measured; we’ve monitored them and studied them.” “Our goal is to deliver the most complete football experience, and this represents a major leap in our quest to create the most authentic experience in FIFA,” said Christian Svensson, Head of FIFA Interactive Entertainment, EA SPORTS. “We are confident in these advancements because we’ve seen them in the bodies of our world-class athletes. With HyperMotion Technology, our goal is to create the definitive experience of what it would be like to play in a real-life setting.” On-Field Performances

The most enhanced Artificial Intelligence will become even more intelligent with on-field performances now responding to intricate and dynamic situations in real time. Artificial Intelligence will react to dynamic, on-field situations and make intelligent decisions before the ball is actually played. As soon as players start moving, AI will react and make choices based on this movement, leaving the ball behind or anticipating movement from teammates. FIFA’s AI will now scan the pitch and quickly adapt to any team’s movement, as it will play off of the opposition. It will analyse the skills of opponents and counter their movements based on how they play, what their weaknesses are and what tendencies they exhibit. This means that the AI will provide a specific, tailored response to an opponent’s play, automatically compensating for the opposition’s strengths and weaknesses. A new system for goal kicks and throws will set-up the play
