Monument to Soviet Veterans of Two Worlds and the Soviet Armed Forces is a multi-layer structure located in the city of Volgograd. The monument complex has received a number of architectural awards and recognitions. It's location, on Victory Square in Volgograd, is in the center of the city, at the heart of the area - one of the main attractions of which is the statue of the Goddess of War. Another part of the monument complex is the large open space between the buildings. The Monument to Soviet Veterans of Two Worlds and the Soviet Armed Forces was built in the early 1980s. The work began in 1981, when the name of the monument was decided. Later, by the order of Mikhail Gorbachev, the architect A.Zhurba was appointed as the chief architect of the monument. The monument had been built in 3 interconnected vertical layers. The lowest part of the monument represents the commemoration site. The monument's second layer was the bulk of the monument. The top of the monument represents the heroic status of our country. A distinguishing feature of the monument is the idea of overcoming the space of the monument. In addition, the monument is designed in the form of 3 concentric spheres. The inner part of the sphere corresponds to the idea of the three faces of the monument - the outer is decorated with the red colors, the middle - with the white, and the inner part - with the blue. The construction of the monument was carried out in 2 phases. The monument was built around a cube-shaped center, with the functions of the "surface" and "dome", surrounded by a cube with the functions of the "mass". The foundation of the monument was marked on August 28, 1979. Later, construction began in 1981, and the monument was completed in 1983. The Monument to Soviet Veterans of Two Worlds and the Soviet Armed Forces has been visited by people from around the world over 0cc13bf012
